

Sentinel Jan 22 2022 Ravindran Malayil is an avid traveler and introspective thinker who loves visiting exotic locales like Titlis, Jungfrauoch, and Nice. In a fascinating travelogue filled with insightful anecdotes, Malayil transports others on a journey around the world while vividly describing such places as the eight Hindu temples in the Maharashtra state of India, the Cologne Cathedral in Germany, the Great Wall of China, Monaco and Monte Carlo, Paris, the Temple of Heaven in Beijing, China, and Varosha, the abandoned tourist resort in Cyprus. Sprinkled throughout his travelogue are Malayil's musings and poems about such diverse topics as the loss of his younger brother, the effects and symptoms of dementia, the cataclysmic transformation that has come over him over the years, his ever-changing reading habits, and the special teacher who taught him a valuable life lesson. Sentinel shares thoughts and colorful descriptions of exotic locations around the world as one man looks both inward and outward while reflecting on his life and travels.

Shivering Sands Aug 29 2022 Ancient ruins. Family scandal. Forbidden love. Caroline knows something is wrong. Her sister Roma has gone missing, and no one can tell her why. The only option is to go where Roma was last seen—an estate with a deadly history... The Stacy family has lived off the Dover coast for generations, carefully navigating the treacherous quicksands nearby. But the sands aren't Caroline's biggest threat. Everyone here has a secret, especially enigmatic young heir Napier Stacy. No matter where Caroline turns, the ground she walks is dangerous. And the closer she comes to unraveling the truth, the closer she comes to sharing her sister's fate... What readers are saying about The Shivering Sands: "The feel of this story was similar to that of Rebecca—the sort of dark, shivery, mysterious feeling. The end was WAY better in my opinion, though. Definitely a good read!"—Mary "This is a five-star historical, romance, mystery, psychological thriller."—Greg B. "The most suspenseful book ever, and many years later, after having read countless Holt books, I can safely say that this is her best work."—Swathi

Das Medienhaus Aug 05 2020 Bertelsmann, einer der größten und am besten vernetzten internationalen Konzerne in Privatbesitz, hat in den letzten Jahren und Jahrzehnten die Medienkonzentration gewaltig vorangetrieben und ist heute eines der weltweit führenden Medienunternehmen. Vom christlichen Kleinverlag im Umfeld einer radikalprotestantischen Erweckungsbewegung im 19. Jahrhundert über den >NS-Musterbetrieb (Heinrich Mohn) in der Zeit des Nationalsozialismus, die Reorganisation des Hauses nach 1945, von den Buch- und Medienclubs, den Zeitschriftenverlagen, bis hin zur Musikvermarktung und der Film-, Fernseh- und Hörfunkunternehmungen liest sich seine Geschichte wie eine beinahe ununterbrochene Erfolgsstory. Überraschenderweise gab es über dieses Kraftwerk der Kreativität, wie der alte Vorstandsvorsitzende Thomas Middelhoff sein Unternehmen bezeichnete, bisher keine ausführliche Darstellung auf wissenschaftlichem Niveau. Diese Lücke schließt nun Thomas Lehnings brillant geschriebene Untersuchung, die - ohne den biographischen Blick durch das Schlüsselloch - aus so abstrakten Daten wie Umsatz- und Mitarbeiterzahlen, internationalen Verflechtungen und Kapitalflüssen, technischen Innovationen und Umgestaltungen der Märkte, aber natürlich auch aus hausinternen Erfolgsgeschichten, Führungsberichten und Nachrichten über interne Machtkämpfe exemplarisch den Aufstieg eines Medienhauses rekonstruiert, dessen unternehmerische Brillanz nicht von der Hand zu weisen ist, das aber auch zeigt, wie die wirtschaftliche Einflußnahme auf die Medien immer mehr zunimmt. Dabei zeichnet sich der gemeinhin als liberal

The Bibliography of Regional Fiction in Britain and Ireland, 1800–2000 Feb 08 2021 Pioneering and interdisciplinary in nature, this bibliography constitutes a comprehensive list of regional fiction for every county of Ireland, Scotland, Wales and England over the past two centuries. In addition, other regions of a usually topographical or urban nature have been used, such as Birmingham and the Black Country; London; The Fens; the Brecklands; the Highlands; the Hebrides; or the Welsh border. Each entry lists the author, title, and date of first publication. The geographical coverage is encompassing and complete, from the Channel Islands to the Shetlands. An original introduction discusses such matters as definition, bibliographical method, popular readerships, trends in output, and the scholarly literature on regional fiction.

Down from London May 26 2022 In the first hundred years of the UK rail network, the seaside figures as a nerve centre, managing and making visible the period's complex interplay between health, death, gender and sexuality. This monograph discusses around 130 novels of the railway age to show how the seaside infiltrates a diverse range of literature, subverting the boundaries between high and low literary culture. The seaside holiday galvanises innovative literary forms, including early twentieth-century holiday crime and romance fiction, which has its origins in the sensational strategies of mid-nineteenth-century authors. Where reading takes place is at least as important as what is read, and case studies on literary Brighton and Dickensian Kent explore the occasionally fraught relationship between seaside towns and the metropolis, as London visitors are represented in – and are the target audience for – literary accounts of the seaside holiday. The act of reading by the sea is itself overdetermined and problematic, a dilemma that is managed in part through the development of text-free literary tourism in the late nineteenth century. Deploying strategies from literary criticism, histories of reading, libraries and the book, and literary tourism, this book recovers 'seaside reading' as both a literary sub-genre and a deeply contested mode of engagement.

The Victorian Geopolitical Aesthetic Apr 24 2022 How did realist fiction alter in the effort to craft forms and genres receptive to the dynamism of an expanding empire and globalizing world? Do these nineteenth-century variations on the "geopolitical aesthetic" continue to resonate today? Crossing literary criticism, political theory, and longue durée history, The Victorian Geopolitical Aesthetic explores these questions from the standpoint of nineteenth-century novelists such as Wilkie Collins, George Eliot, Gustave Flaubert, and Anthony Trollope, as well as successors including E. M. Forster and the creators of recent television serials. By looking at the category of "sovereignty" at multiple scales and in diverse contexts, Lauren M. E. Goodlad shows that the ideological crucible for "high" realism was not a hegemonic liberalism. It was, rather, a clash of modern liberal ideals struggling to distinguish themselves from a powerful conservative vision of empire while striving to negotiate the inequalities of power which a supposedly universalistic liberalism had helped to generate. The material occasion for the Victorian era's rich realist experiments was the long transition from an informal empire of trade that could be celebrated as liberal to a neo-feudal imperialism that only Tories could warmly embrace. The book places realism's geopolitical aesthetic at the heart of recurring modern experiences of breached sovereignty, forgotten history, and subjective exile. The Coda, titled "The Way We Historicize Now", concludes the study with connections to recent debates about "surface reading", "distant reading", and the hermeneutics of suspicion.
